

Our Big Question for this term is: "Why do rights exist?"

Week 2 news

It has been a busy and meaningful week at Bromstone! We began the week by observing Remembrance Day, with some of our children proudly wearing service uniforms and the whole school pausing for a two-minute silence at 11am to reflect and remember.

In addition, we've taken part in Anti-Bullying Week, where our children have been learning about bullying, how to recognise it, and how we can all make a positive difference in our school community. As part of this, we celebrated individuality by wearing odd socks on Tuesday – a fun way to remind everyone how special and unique we all are.

Today, we are showing our support for Children in Need by coming to school in our pyjamas! Thank you to all our families for your generous support of this important cause. It's been a week full of reflection, kindness, and community, and we're so proud of how our children have embraced these meaningful activities.

DONATE

We are on the lookout for any spare or unused decorating paintbrushes, children's plastic spades, mini rakes, trowels or forks that you may have available. These items will help them create investigation stations in our school grounds. We are also looking for spare child friendly magazines. Please could you send any donations of these items into school.

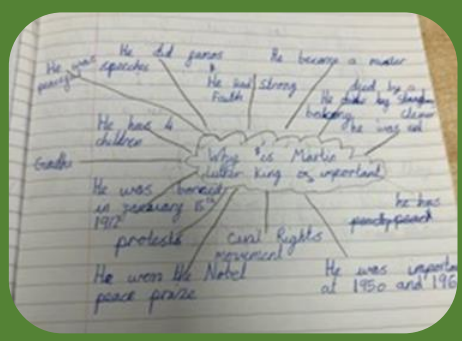

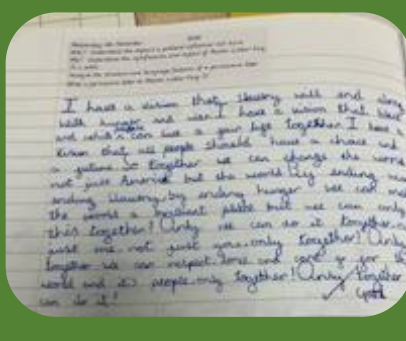

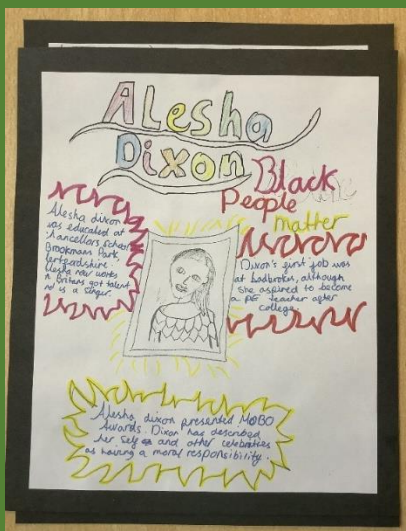

BLACK HISTORY

Last week we celebrated Black History throughout the school. This year, the focus for Black History week across the country was “Reclaiming Narratives.” During the week the children were encouraged to explore black history and culture. This sits really well with our overarching question, “Why do rights exist?”. We always like to start the term with a ‘wow day’; in previous years when exploring rights, we have taken away the right for the children to play and speak. This year we decided to take away the children’s right to sit. An announcement was made during Monday morning and then all the blue chairs were stacked in the corner and wrapped in “Do Not Enter” tape. Some passionate demonstration then followed, as children protested and earned back their right to sit.

For the rest of the week children explored a year group theme linked to black history. EYFS enjoyed listening to the story of SULWE; powerful, moving picture book about colorism, self-esteem, and learning that true beauty comes from within. Year 1 explored the life of Mary Seacole, Year 2 looked at black champions and sporting heroes. Year 4 had fun exploring the life of Martin Luther King Jr and the importance of his “I have a Dream.” speech. Year 5 linked their research to remembrance and explored the life of Walter Tull a World War 1 soldier. Year 6 discussed the impact of Windrush and the “Black Lives Matter” movement.

It was a very thought-provoking week where the children had the opportunity to reflect on the importance of human rights and equal opportunities. Finally, the week ended with the year 3 children entertaining everyone with a calypso song and dance as they presented their own interpretation of the Notting Hill carnival. Fun was had by all.
