Dixie 'Don't give up' Dolphin

One sunny morning, Dixie the Dolphin was happily swimming in the pool at the zoo where she lived. That morning, some children went with their teacher to the zoo to throw some fish to feed the dolphins. All the other dolphins were swimming nearer to the edge than Dixie, and quickly gobbled up most of the fish before swimming away. Dixie could see the children throwing fish. She tried to swim over three times, but each time she couldn't get to the edge of the pool! But she didn't give up. She used all her energy to swim to the side of the pool where the children were, and because they had seen how Dixie hadn't given up they threw her some extra fish!

Camilla 'Concentrate' Camel

Once upon a time there were a family of Camels - Mummy Camel, Daddy Camel and their daughter, Camilla the Camel. One day, Mummy Camel asked Camilla to go out and collect some leaves for dinner. As she set off she met her friend Tom, who wanted to go and play football. But Camilla said "No, I need to collect my leaves". A bit later, she met her cousin Joshua, who asked her to go to his house for lemonade, but again, Camilla said "No, I have to collect leaves. I need to concentrate on what Mummy asked me to do". When she had finished collecting leaves, she went home and told her Mummy what her friends had said. "Well done Camilla for concentrating on what I asked you to do, now you have finished, you can go and play!"

Kylie 'Keep Improving' Kangeroo

One summer's day, Kylie the Kangeroo was busy eating grass near her house. Her Mum had been teaching her how to hop and she wanted to practice so she went to a place where there were no other kangeroos and tried to hop into the air. Unfortunately, she had forgotten everything she had been taught and she fell straight to the ground! But Kylie the Kangeroo didn't stop, she decided to try again (just like Dixie the Dolphin) and got back up again. This time, she remembered to use her legs as she jumped and she went a little bit higher before she fell to the ground. Kylie was happy that she had gone higher so she kept using her legs and improved her hopping every time. Finally, she hopped 2 metres into the air. When she got home, her Mum was very proud of her, but she was also very proud of herself for practising and improving every time.

Elberta 'Enjoyment' Elephant

One winter day, Elberta the elephant was at school. Elberta had been very excited about PE that morning, but halfway through the morning it started to rain outside. Elberta's teacher said that they wouldn't be able to do PE anymore and that they could do some writing instead. Even though Elberta was sad, she decided to try hard at writing. Other elephants in his class were sad and didn't want to try at their writing and they stayed sad all morning, but Elberta tried her best. Because she tried hard and wasn't too sad, she enjoyed what she was learning and learnt lots more! And she was allowed to do PE in the afternoon!
